Knocking the socks off diners from the very beginning.

It all started in 1981 at Cyrus O'Leary's Restaurant in downtown Spokane. The diners couldn't get enough of our pies, so we established an entire separate bakery to produce them on a wholesale basis. Sure enough, the high-quality, made-from-scratch pies proved to be wildly popular. Now, more than 40 years later, they're still delighting patrons everywhere.

Mini pies: Patrons are smitten.

Consumers have been crazy about our mini cream pies for more than 15 years. From the whipped topping blend to the delicious cooked cream filling to the pressed graham crust, they're a real knockout.

And, since consumers prefer grab-and-go convenience (50% of c-store visitors say they are looking for a quick bite), our minis are the perfect fit.¹

Our 4" mini cream pies are designed for convenience store and foodservice ease, now in an easy-to-store 8-ct case.

Away from home is where it's at.

Consumers are interested in trying new foods anywhere — 40% said they like to try new foods at convenience stores, 54% at lodging facilities, and 48% at cafeterias.² And 65% of consumers say they are interested in trying individually wrapped cream pies.³

Our singles are your perfect match.

Why single-serve portions?

It's simple. Consumers seek convenient options that fit their on-the-go lifestyles. In fact, 52% of consumers say they value convenience now more than they did in the past.¹

Who's hungry for them?

The younger generations, particularly Gen Z; parents needing quick snacks for themselves or their children; and workers or commuters who need a fast, satisfying treat.

And why pies?

Talk about hitting the sweet spot: Mini desserts balance indulgence and moderation, allowing for variety and guilt-free enjoyment.²

Uh ... why not?

79% of consumers like or love pie.³

I'm a hot commodity!

69% of consumers eat an indulgent treat weekly or more.⁴

Younger consumers take this to the extreme, with 76% of Gen Z indulging at least weekly and 14% doing so multiple times per day.⁴

C-store customers are looking for an everyday treat, at any time of day.⁵

And finally, more than 50% of consumers prefer individually sized portions of dessert.⁶
